

The Kids in the Hall Bistro Program offers youth valuable skills and knowledge for their transition to self-sufficiency.

Kids in the Hall Bistro Program is a nine-month project geared to tackle the issues that have hindered young people from success.

Our specialized training plus actual on the job experience in the bistro at city hall has consistently help the youth further their education and find employment.

A Youth Employment and Education Program

The Kids in the Hall Bistro Program helps at-risk youth aged 16 to 24 gain the knowledge and skills necessary to be successful in an educational or employment setting. Many of the youth enrolled in the program come from unstable home environments and are facing multiple barriers to success.

The program uses paid work and on-the-job training to help youth reach their goals. Giving youth this kind of experience in a viable restaurant, combined with other support has led to a high success rate. Youth leave the program with secure employment or to continue their education.

Program participants graduate with concrete work experience, life skills, competency in various food service industry roles, basic understandings of business practices and exposure to a variety of workplace environments through off-site work experiences.

The program draws strength from its blending of community partnerships, compassion for the clients' needs, and the capacity for innovation. For participants, it means being a part of a dynamic environment to learn and work in and an opportunity to make their own way.
